

38.03.05 Business Informatics

Business Informatics for Digital Economy

Program designers:

leading MEPhI professors and scientists from academic institutions, and namely academician B.N. Porfiriev, Corresponding Member of the Russian Academy of Sciences G.B. Kleiner, Corresponding Member of the Russian Academy of Sciences V.V. Ivanov, Corresponding Member D.E. Sorokin and others.

Program objective:

digital and integrated training for information support of high technologies development taking into account changing economic relations.

Key courses:

- traditional disciplines of economic training
- systems engineering
- digital design and construction
- investment analysis of innovative projects

The competencies obtained during the training allow graduates to get positions in economic, management and innovation divisions of investment funds, high-tech business, analytical centers, large corporations.