

38.06.01 Economics

National Economy and Management

Program objective

Studies of economic systems of various scales, levels, spheres of action, forms of ownership, their genesis, formation, development, forecasting.

Key research areas:

Regional economics:

- patterns and features of the functioning of the economy of the Russian Federation as a system of interacting regions (economic zones, large economic regions, subjects of the Federation, economic clusters, urban agglomerations and other spatial economic entities);
- rational spatial distribution of economic resources;
- economic differentiation and integration in the national space;
- promising directions of economic development of individual regions as structural elements of the national economy;
- regional economic policy and mechanisms for its implementation;
- economic foundations of federal relations.

Economic security:

- assessment of the current state and forecasts of economic security;
- development of supporting mechanisms;
- institutional transformations to improve the level of economic security.

Price setting:

- methodological foundations of price formation and setting, state influence on the pricing in economic systems of various types, especially state intervention in pricing in Russian economy;
- state pricing policy and methods of its implementation;
- goals of state pricing policy and socio-economic consequences of its implementation, regulating the impact on reproduction processes in the real sector of the economy.